Are you interested in getting financial help to educate your children?

At St. John's Church, Front Royal, on Sunday, January 29th, at 3:00 PM in Fr. Ruehl Hall, America's most successful promoter of "no strings attached" state financial aid directly to students who do not use public schools will explain how they did it in Arizona.

Catholic, Wife, Mother of 8, Pro-Life Advocate, School Choice Supporter and Citizen Lobbyist

She is Christine Accurso, a mother who led the effort that resulted in Arizona's "Empowerment Scholarship Account (ESA) Program. Essentially, that portion of the state's per student contribution to public schools can be redirected to students who opt out of public schools. In Arizona it is about $7,000 to students in private, parochial, and home school and no strings attached.

Virginia's General Assembly is considering a similar program this legislative session, so Christine's talk is timely. Her short formal presentation will be followed by plenty of time for Q & A.

The presentation will also be livestreamed on the St. John's Facebook page. Facebook.com/sjtboutreach
