FROM THE DIRECTOR

OPENING MASS THIS SATURDAY: Many thanks to all who attended the Opening Mass on Saturday. It was a beautiful occasion. Special thanks to all who helped with the Mass and reception: choir and cantor, altar servers, lectors, sacristans, those who set up the John Paul II Center, Hospitality Committee. We are also grateful to all those who brought in food donations.

HUMANAE VITAE, 50TH ANNIVERSARY: The Anglican church was the first Protestant denomination to change its teaching that contraception is intrinsically evil. At the Lambeth Conference in 1931, the Anglican hierarchy declared that contraceptives could be used for serious reasons. The Federal Council of Churches (an organization of most of the main Protestant denominations in the United States) made the same decision. Here is a commentary on this decision: "Carried to its logical conclusion, the [Council's] report, if carried into effect, would sound the deathknell of marriage as a holy institution by establishing degrading practices which would encourage indiscriminate immorality. The suggestion that the use of legalized contraceptives would be 'careful and restrained' is preposterous." Can you guess where this commentary came from? No, not the Pope.

It was the Washington Post, which had a somewhat different editorial staff than today. Here is what Pope Pius XI said, in his encyclical Casti Connubii "Any use whatsoever of matrimony exercised in such a way that the act is deliberately frustrated in its natural power to generate life is an offense against the law of God and of nature, and those who indulge in such are branded with the guilt of a grave sin." This definitive teaching was accepted by the Catholic people, most of whom continued to keep their marriages open to life at all times.

SUFFERINGS OF THE CHURCH: As each of us decides what special penances we will do in response to the sufferings in the Church, I offer the following excerpt from the Pastoral Statement on Penance and Abstinence issued by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops:

Friday itself remains a special day of penitential observance throughout the year, a time when those who seek perfection will be mindful of their personal sins and the sins of mankind which they are called upon to help expiate in union with Christ Crucified. . . . Among the works of voluntary self-denial and personal penance which we especially commend to our people for the future observance of Friday... we give first place to abstinence from flesh meat. We do so in the hope that the Catholic community will ordinarily continue to abstain from meat by free choice as formerly we did in obedience to Church law. . . . We shall thus freely and out of love for Christ Crucified show our solidarity with the generations of believers to whom this practice frequently became, especially in times of persecution and of great poverty, no mean evidence of fidelity to Christ and His Church. We shall thus also remind ourselves that as Christians, although immersed in the world and sharing its life, we must preserve a saving and necessary difference from the spirit of the world. Our deliberate, personal abstinence from meat, more especially because no longer required by law, will be an outward sign of inward spiritual values that we cherish.

I know that many of our families already practice Friday abstinence. I encourage all of our families to do so whenever possible, and all of us to offer this penance for the intentions of our Holy Mother Church and for the healing of all victims.
